

Profoundly Grateful

We join with the two pages and more of business men who in this issue by printer's ink express gratitude for patronage and confidence richly bestowed and pledge ourselves to the fullest extent of our ability to merit a continuation of the many past favors. The Mt. Sterling Advocate, unanchored by selfish ends, will continue the friend of the great common people, and in no way allied to a privileged few.

That YOU and YOURS may enjoy it—and many more as good—is the sincere wish of Another Christmas has passed and we are all glad of the many gifts received. We are glad to say there was no drinking here.

Miss Maude Benningfield had as her guests Christmas day, Vina and Matt Benningfield, Paul Faught and Virgil Martin. All had a splendid time.

Miss Milla Baker, of Cane creek, and George Crowe, of Filson, were quietly married at the bride's home Thursday. We wish for them a long and happy married life.

Miss Gladys Lowe, spent Christmas with her sister at Furnace.

Maney and Ernest Foster were here Thursday morning. They were on their way home from Winchester, where they had been to attend the trial of Boyd Spencer.

Miss Carrie McEwen had a Christmas tree at the home of her sister, Mrs. Lizzie Burke, Friday for very pupils. They all enjoyed it very much.

Several went from here to Bowen Tuesday to the Masonic meeting. Floyd Daniel visited his uncle, John Morton, Christmas week.

Sincere Good Wishes

I have enjoyed a good business and I take this method of thanking the people for their patronage and of asking a continuance of their favors. I propose starting the New Year with inducements in prices. Again thanking you for your business and wishing you a Prosperous and Happy New Year, I am, Very sincerely,

ISAAC JOBE

General Merchant, Richmond Ave.

The days of 1921 remaining are few and for the past in business and pleasure we are grateful and pledge our best efforts in rendering better service and meriting your confidence and patronage for 1922. A Happy, Prosperous New Year to all is our wish.

MOVIELAND

"Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" (a Cosmopolitan-Paramount) translates George M. Cohan's stage play of the same name to the screen in masterful fashion. Sam Hardy, Norman Kerry and Doris Kenyon have the outstanding roles, though a dozen other players score prominently.

"The Way of a Maid" (Seznick) is another pleasing little story in which Elaine Hammerstein stars. She is accorded splendid support by Niles Welch and George Fawcett and the picture is beautifully staged and photographed.

"Don't Tell Everything" (Paramount) brings out an interesting bit of philosophy through orderly and entertaining narration of a very modern story. Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson, Elliott Dexter and Dorothy Cummings have the four chief roles and register success in that order.

"From the Ground Up" (Goldwyn) is a Rupert Hughes story written especially for Tom Moore, who has the role of a happy-go-lucky Irishman who works his way up from a common laborer to a well known contractor. It has a pretty love romance running through it, but lacks the humor and spontaneity of other Hughes stories and Moore vehicles.

"Miss Lula Bett" (Paramount) represents William DeMille's most effective endeavor directorially to date. Zona Gale's prize play becomes a picture of fitting merit. Lois Wilson gives memorable impersonation of the leading character. Theodore Roberts and equally capable others support her excellently.

"A Sailor Made Man" (Pathe) presents Harold Lloyd in his first four-reel comedy. It is crammed full of unusual business and each stunt is nicely timed. Most of the scenes are on a man of war with regular "jackies" as atmosphere. A first-rate comedy from every angle.

"Stardust" (First National) Hope Hampton starring vehicle that will receive the approbation of every lover of good, clean screen stories. It is quite the best thing Miss Hampton has ever done and it gives her her first real opportunity to display her histrionic ability.

"Jackie" (Fox) is an English story, conventional in plot, but intensely human and possessing considerable sympathetic appeal. Shirley Mason enacts the leading role, that of a Russian girl thrown upon the world in the slums of London. A pleasing love story runs through the picture.

"The Idle Rich" (Metro) brings Bert Lytell to the screen in a very humorous, swift moving comedy-drama, an adapted Saturday Evening Post story by Kennett Harris, called "Junk."

"The Hole in the Wall" (Metro) presents Alice Lake in a forceful, melodramatic crook story, pointing a moral, in which a seeress and her fellow workers, seeking revenge, reform and go straight.

LOOKS GOOD

Rev. T. Benton Hill has returned from his Virginia home with good cheer for business appearances. Tobacco will go at a good price and the people generally are of high spirits.

According to a contemporary, the most anxious time in a girl's life is when she is called upon to decide whether she shall marry or keep her freedom. Generally, of course, she solves the problem by doing both.

A bandit robbed the guests of a New York hotel and escaped because they thought he was an employee.

The Advocate, twice a week.
